Well-child check-ups for children

Medicaid pays for well-child check-ups for children age 20 and under. Babies, small children, teenagers and young adults all grow and change quickly.

It is important to take children to the doctor for regular check-ups even when they are not sick. Often the doctor can find small problems and keep them from becoming big problems.

*Denver Health Medicaid Choice starts their care for new moms 2 weeks after babies are born and the report card grades health plans' care starting 3 weeks after babies are born. So the report card may not show how well Denver Health Choice cares for new moms.
